

HARRO VAN ASSELT

Institute for Environmental Studies, Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam

harro.van.asselt@ivm.vu.nl

Harro van Asselt, LL.M. (International Law), is researcher at the department of Environmental Policy Analysis at the Institute for Environmental Studies (IVM) of the Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam since November 2002, and has been a research fellow with the Multiple Options, Solutions and Approaches: (Institutional) Interplay and Conflict

(‘MOSAIC’) group of the international Global Governance Project (Glogov.org) since July 2005.

His main interests are international climate change policy and law, trade and environment issues, environmental law, international environmental governance, and implementation of European environmental policy. Currently, he is working on his doctoral thesis in the context of the international research program Adaptation And Mitigation Strategies (ADAM), funded by the European Commission. From February to May 2007 he was a Visiting Associate at the Department of Value and Decision Science at the Tokyo Institute of Technology, Japan.